SCHOOL OF OCEANOGRAPHY

The School of Oceanography celebrates and recognizes the dedication and future imaginations of its newest graduates. The stoles presented today are a gift from donations to the School made by faculty, former students and others who appreciate and wish to publicly recognize the achievements of today’s graduates. Designed by an oceanography student in 2014, the stoles have become a tradition in the School’s graduation ceremony. The stole identifies at Graduation those who know that the ocean and our human futures are inextricably linked.

COLLEGE OF THE ENVIRONMENT

In appreciation of the 2022 College of the Environment graduating class, the College is partnering with the Campus Sustainability Fund to help fund the Fresh Food Recovery for the UW Food Pantry project, a student run organization that provides food at no cost to students, staff, and faculty facing food insecurity. This gift will help fund a gleaning coordinator position and a new refrigerator to increase food storage and expand efforts to glean food from campus dining locations and the UW Farm, annually diverting over 5,000 pounds of fresh food from the landfill. We are excited to support increased sustainability and well-being of our Husky community.
The School of Oceanography acknowledges the Coast Salish peoples of this land, the land which touches the shared waters of all tribes and bands within the Suquamish, Tulalip and Muckleshoot nations. We thank the people of these tribes—past, present, and future—on whose traditional lands we study and work.
